

December 2017 WTHS News

- With 26 programs of study, there are always many career specific activities going on at Worcester Tech! During the past month...
- Our Biomed seniors visited the Anatomy Gifts Registry where they donned surgical attire to experience cadaver dissection and examine diseased human organs.
- Culinary students participated in the Pocumoke Mayor's Old Fashioned Christmas, selling their delicious baked goods to the citizens.
- Personnel from Perdue visited Ag Science to talk to students about careers within the poultry industry.
- Criminal Justice students built ballistic gel blocks and studied the effect of bullets and trajectory on the blocks at the Worcester County Firing Range assisted by Firearms instructors.
- The trades' students took some time to work on our school's float for the Berlin Parade.
- Heather Mahler, Program Director, and Lauren Zarin, Program Administrator, for the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore took a tour of our facility and programs.
- In addition, Jessica Eisemann, former Worcester Tech counselor – now of Edward Jones – brought three Wicomico businesspeople for a tour. Like everyone else who visits, they left impressed with all that Worcester Tech has to offer students.
- We love when the little ones visit - Buckingham, Showell, and Ocean City Elementary 3rd grade students and Buckingham's 4th grade after-school students participated in hands-on career activities lead by our students.
- CTE instructors from Worcester, Wicomico and Wor-Wic always have exciting conversations about programs during their annual articulation meeting.
- We always try to give back, especially during the holidays....
- Worcester Tech's schoolwide Penny Wars, where programs competed against each other for a week to collect as many PENNIES as possible in their own jar AND put as many NON-PENNIES in every other programs' jars, raised $1139.16 towards sponsoring families for the holidays.
- Participating in either a breakfast or ice cream sundae party, students raised $411.00 toward our school's United Way campaign.
- The Culinary students deboned and cooked 190 pounds of chickens for the Arts and Entertainment District in Berlin to provide many families with chicken dinners on Giving Tuesday.
- Our Going for the Gold Annual Fundraiser to also support families during the holiday season kicked off last week.
- From Worcester Tech to all of you – Merry Christmas and wishes for a wonderful New Year.
