

March 2017 Worcester Technical High School News

- On February 22nd, Worcester Tech was recognized as a PLTW Distinguished School.
- On March 8th, thanks to our partnership with Worcester County Emergency Services, our 1st cohort of 11 Homeland Security students all earned FEMA – Community Response Certification.
- On March 10th, 15 Business students participated in the FBLA State Leadership Conference in Hunt Valley. Four students won competitions in journalism, client service, introduction to business, and job interview and will move on to the National Conference and competitions in Baltimore June 28 to July 1. The four students will be recognized at next month's Board Meeting.
- The week of March 12th brought some little visitors to Worcester Tech. Due to road construction, Head Start children stayed with us for a week -luckily we have an Early Childhood program whose students made great hosts.
- On March 13th, Worcester Tech was proud to supply the location for the MD Center for Safety Conference, which was both informational and emotional for all who attended.
- On March 16th, 5 Ag. Science students attended the Region 5 Public Speaking Competitions at Chesapeake College. Four students placed in extemporaneous speaking and will be recognized at next month's Board Meeting.
- Last, but certainly not least, State Superintendent Dr. Karen Salmon visited Worcester Tech on March 16th touring the PLTW Pre-Engineering and Biomedical Sciences programs and the Trades programs. Dr. Salmon visited Worcester Tech in 2015 – it was nice to have her back again.
