Congratulations to Worcester Technical High School's Teacher of the Year Nominee Mrs. Aarti Sangwan

Worcester Technical High School is pleased to announce that its 2021 nominee for Worcester County Teacher of the Year is Mrs. Aarti Sangwan.

Aarti Sangwan has been an educator for almost 8 years. Mrs. Sangwan, teaches AP Physics, Computer Science and Pre-Engineering at Worcester Technical High School (WTHS). She hails from India with a Bachelor of Science in Physics. She earned a Master's in Computer Science from Western Illinois University. Aarti volunteered to teach numerous hours in Wicomico County Public schools for which she was awarded a Governor's Citation. Her journey in Education started with a Master's of Arts in Teaching at Salisbury University, where her dedication was recognized and Aarti was awarded the "Teacher of Promise" award by the Maryland State Department of Education.

Aarti believes that the purpose of education is to connect with students and facilitate creative learning so that students may discover their inner passions to learn and innovators and creators in the future work force. Aarti has taught in all STEM academies at WTHS for the past five years. She is a two-time recipient of the Innovation Award in Worcester County, which awards teachers for exceptional demonstrations of new, cutting-edge technology implementation in the classroom. She has coached successful Science Olympiad teams at middle and high schools. Aarti leads the Girls' Coding Club, providing her students with a platform to experience computing and cybersecurity. She also leads Team Engineering Challenge at SkillsUSA enabling middle school students to design, build, test and present an engineering prototype. She also serves as a chairperson on the school improvement plan for WTHS leading educators' learning and growth in the district's new learning management system, Schoology.

WTHS Principal Tom Zimmer noted, Mrs. Sangwan is an amazing teacher in our Project Lead the Way program. She teaches Computer Science, Physics, and Engineering. She has had a tremendous impact on many students in the county!

For these reasons and many others, it was clear that Aarti Sangwan was a true stand out and deserved the recognition as Worcester Technical High Schools nominee for 2020 "Teacher of the Year."

We at WTHS think we are pretty lucky to have a teacher of Mrs. Sangwan's caliber and outstanding character. During the next few months, Mrs. Sangwan will compete with other fine teachers from Worcester County, Maryland for the coveted recognition of "Teacher of the Year."

Worcester Technical High School congratulates Mrs. Sangwan for being recognized as our standout teacher and nominee for this year's recognition and hope that others acknowledge her accomplishments and devotion as we have.

Congratulations!

"We are preparing students to be college and career ready."
